DNV GL Award for Young Professionals 2016

Enter now for the chance to win €1,000 with the 2016 DNV GL Award for Young Professionals

Students of electrical or mechanical engineering or a maritime subject may submit their master's or bachelor's thesis, or another paper, if it is written within the study period and covers one of the following topics:

- safer
- smarter or
- greener.

Whichever one of the three topics was chosen, it should focus on naval architecture, marine engineering, ship operation (technical or commercial) or ship design.

All submitted papers will be examined and evaluated by a jury according to the following criteria:

- Innovative
- Interest to society
- Complexity of task for young researcher

- Quality of the paper (comprehensibility, completeness, writing style)

The application form is available for download here.

The winning three students will each receive a cash prize of €1,000.

What's more, the winners will have the chance to present their thesis to an audience of experts during Posidonia 2016 in Athens, Greece.
